NOT MUCH SCARLET FEVER
Maybe we should touch wood, cross our fingers and other lucky things, while we say that so far Raymond has had very little Scarlet Fever this year, according to the M. H. O. Scarlet Fever is more prevalent around Magrath and Stirling.

The children and their Kindergarten Teacher Mrs. Orson Anderson have donated $7.00 to the Library Fund.

DOMION DAY IS DRAW DAY
July 1st has been set as 'Draw Day' by the local Rotary Club. On that day the draw will be made for the three steers and two lambs which are the prizes for the Rotary Quiz. Tickets are still available from all members of the Rotary Club with all the proceeds going to the Memorial Library Building Fund.

Mr. L. L. Pack has returned to his home in Vernon, B. C. after visiting his daughter, Mrs. Bill Meeks, and his sons Renan and Mirza and families. Even with all the rain, he said that Alberta sure looked good to him.

The Sr. Gleaners honored Colleen Christensen at a Farewell Party at the home of Mrs. Manilla Meldrum Thursday. During the evening a short program was enjoyed, consisting of a piano duet by Margaret Bridge and Katherine Keeler and a vocal solo by Nora Stone, after which games were played.

A huge Bible that was found to contain numerous lovely and useful gifts, was brought in and placed before the prospective missionary. A delightful lunch concluded the enjoyable evening.

Mrs. Myra Humpries of Calgary and Mrs. Joyce Leavitt of Winnipeg enjoyed a few days visit with their mother Mrs. Emma Dahl recently. On Sunday Jack and Bert spent the day in town before returning home with their families. Mr. and Mrs. Leavitt will be making their home in Penhold where Bert has been transferred.

Capacity Crowd Attends Dance Festival
The capacity crowd at the annual Dance Festival held recently, enjoyed the varied and colorful dances through the eyes of Pierette and Pierot who pantomimed during the Narration by Martha Woolley.

The 'Yankee Mixer' All American Promenade, Two For One Waltz, Little Man In A Fix and Meet Me Mixer were danced by members of the six Wards, after which the audience had (for most of them) their first view of television as Magrath couples danced several Folk Dances in costumes.

The ladies in swirling pastel formal, and gentlemen from Stirling danced the Fascination Waltz followed by a Miniature Waltz by Raymond 4th and Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Stone, Ted Brewerton and Carmo Paxman, Helen Fairbanks and Bernice Dahl, and Bill Nalder and Ethel Hicken, the Raymond Dance Directors, in typical South American Costumes danced the dashing National Dance after which two squares from the Dance Club entertained with three numbers. The Fourth Ward's Fox Trot Frolic, for which the girls wore ballerina length frocks, preceded 'Sweet Sue' danced by Stirling, Welling and Raymond 1st. 'Down The Lane' a Round Dance and 'Flirtation' which was danced to the music of 'Wilhameina' by Raymond 2nd, 3rd and 4th, Welling and Stirling.

An Irish number was waltzed by a Lethbridge group in green and black costumes followed by a Rumba Round.

The finale was 'The Saramba' danced by the entire company in Spanish costumes.

General dancing to records was enjoyed during the remainder of the evening.

A lot of credit for this full evening of entertainment goes to those working behind the scenes; Mr. and Mrs. Jo Strong and the Ward Dance Directors, Rayo Woolf who was responsible for the beautiful lighting effects and Mesdames Emm Redd, Eleanor Hudson, and Marie Strong who wrote the dialogue. Pierette and Pierot were played by Pat Strong and Kay Salmon. Raymond has had the privilege of witnessing many outstanding events and this Dance Festival, culminating the winter's work, takes its place at the top.

THE GOWN OF GLORY

by Agnes Sligh Turnbull

"Happy is he to whom God has given with sparing hand, as much as is enough."

—Horace

This is the theme of Agnes Sligh Turnbull's first novel since the famous The Bishop's Mantle. In The Gown of Glory Mrs. Turnbull turns from the problems of a fashionable city parish to the drama, humor, pathos and adventure in the life of the minister of a village church of fifty years ago.

This is the story of a wonderful family, short on cash but rich in everything else. It is the story of a full and happy marriage, and of what happens when a very wealthy young man falls in love with the minister's daughter.

Twenty-five years before, David Lyall had brought Mary to the village of Ladykirk as his bride. Now there were Faith, the eldest daughter, who gave music lessons to continue her own studies; Jeremy, whose summers as a book salesman were putting him through college; and Lucy, the radiant eighteen-year-old whose education was being finished at home to save

Relief Societies Enjoy Social

The four Ward Relief Societies enjoyed a very interesting program at the Second Ward this week when the past three year's Literature Classes was climaxed.

Mrs. Phoebe Dahl, on behalf of the other Literary Teachers, Inez Hicken, Jean Rolfsen and Nonavee Jones, announced the following numbers.

Flow Gently Sweet Afton sung by Gen Hawkins, Laura Watson, Irene Allred and Marie Strong, after which Mrs. Louie Taylor read Ode To The West Wind followed by an organ solo, Last Rose of Summer, played by Maybelle Anderson followed by Martha Wolley's Reading of Abou Ben Adam by Leigh Hunt.

Lucy Stevens as Lady Catherine and Dora King as Elizabeth were introduced by Virginia Wilde as Jane Austen, author of Pride and Prejudice, after which The Last Rose of Summer and Rule Britannia were sung by the congregation led by Ruth Salmon Betty Watson and Emma Dahl at the piano.

Mrs. Angie Nalder sang, and played her own accompaniment, Give Me Back My Heart by Byron before Dorothy Roberts read The Skylark by Wordsworth, Believe Me Of All Those Endearing Young Charms was sung by Ruth Salmon and Emma Dahl who were followed by Betty Watson who read Burns Unpublished Poem, after which Mrs. Edda Brandley read She Walks in Beauty Like The Night by Byron.

The appropriate prizes given by Virginia Rolfsen, caused a great deal of merriment as she was given the name of the poem or song from which various excerpts were taken.

The prayers were offered by Lillian Roberts and Virginia Holmes. After Old Lang Syne lunch was served by the four Presidencies.

LAFF OF THE WEEK

"... and you'd better bring some cash with you, dear—he's not as glib as we thought!"

Mrs. Honnie Heninger entertained the Book Lovers Score when they met for their May Meeting. Mrs. Thelma Merrill, as a special guest, reviewed the book "Winter in April".

Mrs. Mona Heninger and Mrs. Florie Palmer were also special guests.

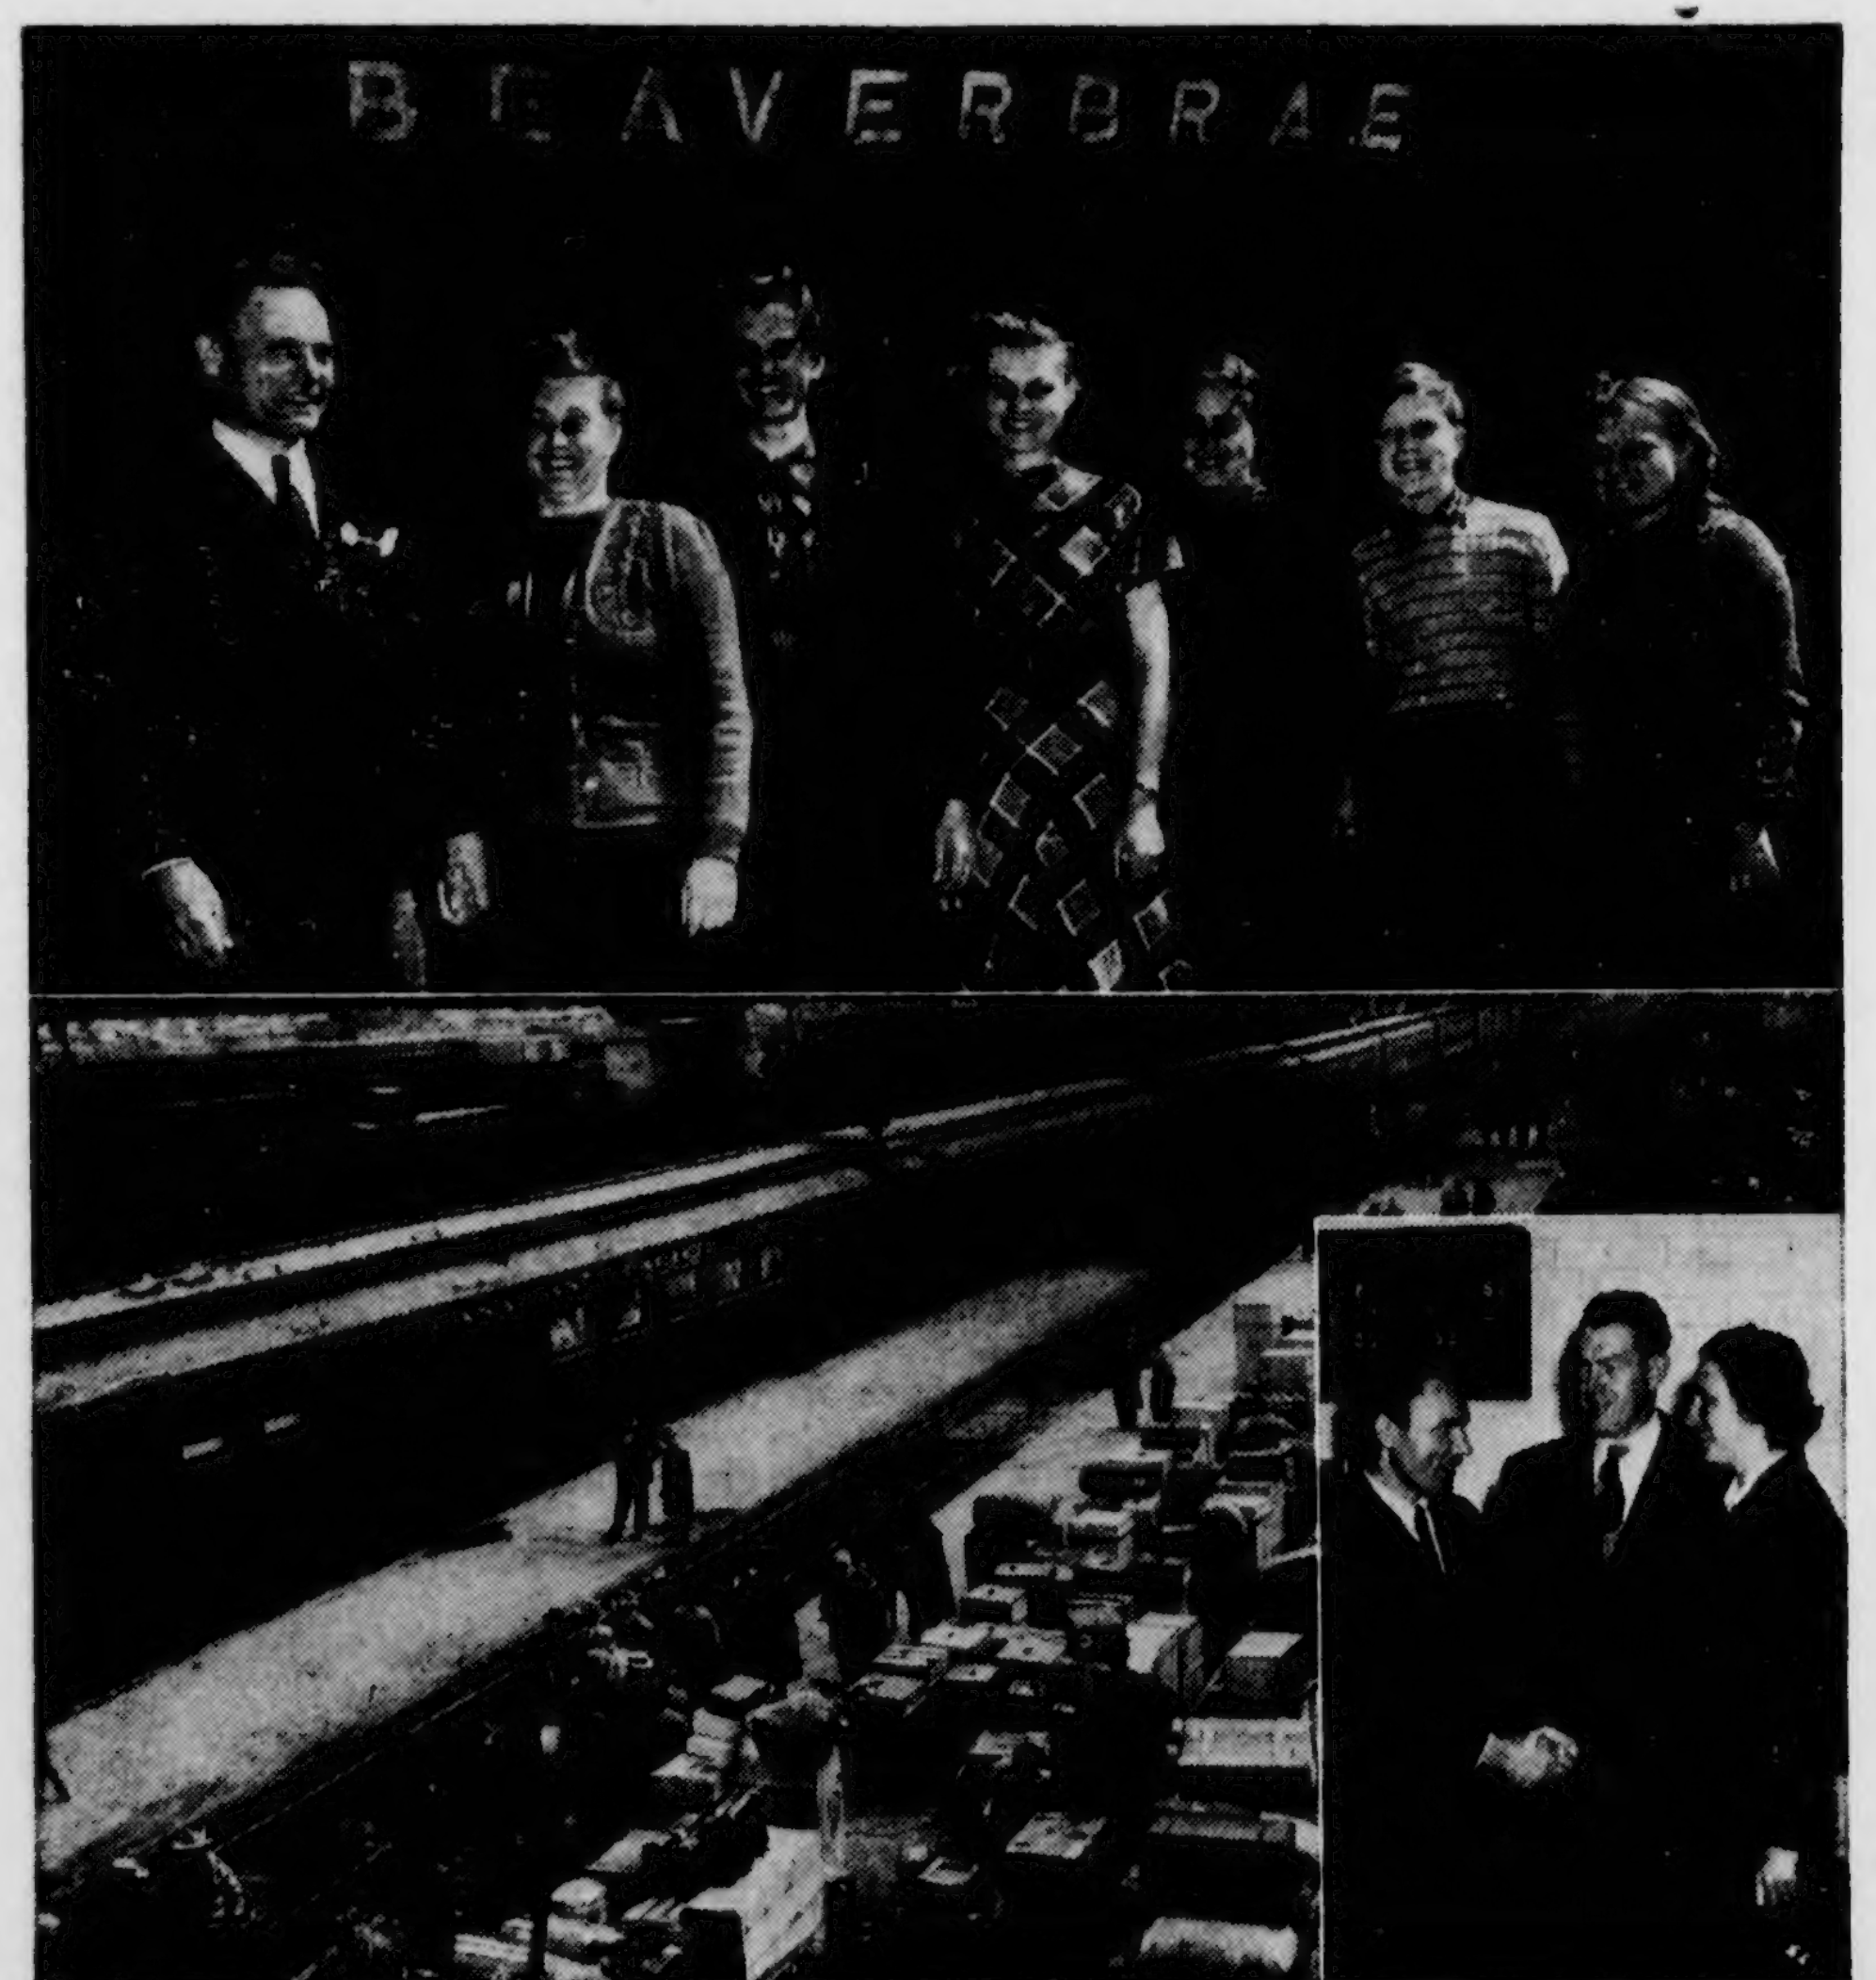

Mrs. Mary Coppieters and Darlene left last week for South Bend, Indiana to attend the funeral of her mother.

Mrs. Emily Stuart of Cardston is visiting her son-in-law and daughter Mr. and Mrs. Ab Hague.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rich of Los Angeles were week-end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Harker during part of their stay in Southern Alberta.

Mr. and Mrs. Rich and their three sons, Delbert, Vern and Ray, who had a family orchestra, have travelled over practically all of the United States playing at various towns and cities. At one time they played at a famous Restaurant in Hawaii for six months.

Local people may remember when they played at Raymond, Magrath and Lethbridge several years ago.

LONG VOYAGE TO NEW HOME

Just one of the many thousands of Europeans who have emigrated to Canada for resettlement in the post-war years is Alexander Holz, but he was also the 30,000th cleared through the Canadian Christian Council for Resettlement of Refugees. He is shown here (top photo) with his wife and five children just after disembarking from the Canadian Pacific's 9,000 ton immigrant vessel, Beaverbrae, at Quebec City following a transatlantic voyage from Germany. The Holtz family who made the trip with about 800 other immigrants, then boarded a special Canadian Pacific train which is shown arriving at Lethbridge, almost the last stop on their long voyage to their new home at Coaldale. On the trans-Canada trip, there was a happy meeting in Winnipeg, as Mr. Holz was introduced to Elizabeth Eck, who was the 10,000th immigrant to come to Canada under the auspices of the C.C.C.R. Miss Eck, who arrived in Canada in 1949, was introduced to Mr. Holz by Rev. C. L. Monk, of Winnipeg, executive secretary of Canadian Lutheran World Relief. The three principals in this little drama are shown in the picture at lower right.

To Our Visiting Teachers

May is the last "Visiting Teachers" meeting
Till the end of next September,
You have a while to work alone,
This you must remember,
You are on your own these months to come,
May each couple get together
And get their visiting teaching done,
No matter what the weather.

If you think it's always raining
On the day you choose to go,
Then go a day that is sunny,
There are always some — you know,
Whether they live on a country road,
Or off a gravelled street,
Your visits are looked forward to
By the sisters on your beat.

"She can who thinks she can"
Is my motto in this work,
If it's Heavenly Father's desire,
Then I surely must not shirk,
Let the house go, the dusting, and the dishes,
(It's only an afternoon),
Let's carry out the will of the Lord,
And do His work — real soon.

It has been said, and I say it again
"Where there's a will — there's a way"
To do the job that is asked of us.
Let's do it, — come what may!
Let us be diligent, prompt, and true
Till the battle we have won,
So the Master may also say of us,
"Thou good and faithful servant, well done!"

"Our Service Will Always Be The Best Possible"

OFFICE BOYS at John Inglis plant in Toronto will get $46 for a 36½-hour week (just under $1.30 an hour) under new agreement signed between the company and the Office and Professional Workers (CIO-CCL). This is about as much as the Toronto Board of Education pays a beginning teacher; is more than many jobs pay that require some degree of skill and training.

Wages like this can only have an inflationary effect on wages generally. If office boys are going to get $1.30 and hour, grown men with families to support, and with years of experience behind them, will expect $2 and $3 and hour.

Effect on boys themselves may be disastrous. If they start their working career with high wages and short hours, they will have little ambition to improve themselves; will assume throughout life that the world owes them a comfortable living.

Interesting sidelight on this is provided by court case at Whitby, Ontario where two brothers, aged 16 and 18, were convicted of burglary. Magistrate told them: "You are making more money than your parents, and this is one of the main troubles with our youth of today."

Ruth Walker and Irene Miller were co-hostesses at the latter's home last Wednesday when the LesAmies enjoyed an evening of chatting and handwork.

RECOMMENDED READING

Dear Harry,

I like the chicken business because it is different from anything else on the farm.

First, the work is easier than other farm work. About all you have to do is to carry the feed out to the birds and carry the eggs back to the house, using the same basket and pail. If you provide nests for the birds, then you don't even have to hunt for the eggs. The hens will lay them in the nests for you. They do all of the laying without help.

Compare the poultry business with the dairy. I never saw a cow that gave milk, regardless of breed. You have to take it away from them, and if you don't do a good job in the evening, you have it to do all over again the next morning. Then the work just starts. You have to separate the milk, pasteurize it, churn the cream, work the buttermilk out and the salt in, then put it in large boxes, then into small squares, then wrap it in wax paper and put it into cartons before it is ready for the market.

Compare that with the poultry business — carrying the feed to the chickens and the eggs to the house. The egg is the most complete food in the world. Sealed in an individual package, it is ready for the King's table or the market.

Everything is in an egg that is required to make a complete life. The dairyman may think that milk is the most complete food, but is not. You can have a complete chick from the white of an egg in just three weeks, but you cannot incubate a calf from a bucket of milk. You can nourish life with milk but not produce it.

There are lots of reasons why I like the poultry business, but I have time to tell you only a few. I like the chicken business because a hen never complains about anything, whether it is hot or cold — all she is interested in is digging and scratching for a living and laying eggs.

The chicken is the only being on the farm that works digging for worms. When she finds the ground hard, she digs around it. She never wastes her breath complaining, but saves that to cackle and advertise when she has laid an egg.

If a lot of us were more like the old hen, do less complaining and do a little more advertising about the most complete and finest food in the world — eggs and poultry meat — we would all be better off, and wear a bigger smile, which always makes people look better.

Don't forget the chicken business is the best business in the world. You can eat them before they are born. They will make a fine living when they are alive, and are dandy eating after they are dead.

Your pal,
Joe

the tuition fee of the Academy. At the heart of the manse, the family, even the village itself, was Mary, whose years of joyful giving to husband, children and neighbors were returned to her in love.

But most of all this is David's story, that of a man whose gifts and quiet ambition made him long for larger opportunities; but who learned that size is not a matter of place but of the manner of living.

You will live in this novel. If you have ever seen a country town come slowly awake on a summer Sabbath, if you begin to think life itself was richer textured in the days before radio and the rocket, you will find in these pages a warm and abiding pleasure, and a deep sense of peace.

Agnes Sligh Turnbull was born in a country village in Western Pennsylvania and grew up in the era she describes. The happiness of those calm and sunny years is reflected in this novel, along with the wisdom, honesty and human understanding which have won her a wide and discriminating American audience and an international reputation.

EXPERIMENTAL STATION WEEKLY LETTER

IRRIGATED PASTURE MIXTURES

D. B. Wilson — Pasture Investigations
Irrigated pasture research at the Lethbridge Experimental Station continues and better grass and legume mixtures are continually being sought. The mixtures currently being recommended are based on the latest information.

A permanent mixture, that has proved to be highly productive, is: Orchardgrass, 7 lbs. per acre; Smooth brome grass, 7 lbs. per acre; Creeping red fescue, 4 lbs. per acre; and White Dutch clover, 2 lbs. per acre.

This mixture is recommended for good land, with a good supply of water, and is suitable for all classes of stock. The orchardgrass in it is very productive and recovers rapidly after grazing. Smooth brome grass is productive in the first few years and is very palatable. Creeping red fescue helps to form a firm sod and grows late in the fall. White Dutch clover is a very palatable legume that does not grow high enough to be a bloat hazard.

A similar, but less generally adaptable mixture is: Orchardgrass, 10 lbs. per acre; White Dutch clover, 2 lbs. per acre.

A temporary pasture of 2 to 4 years duration: Smooth brome grass, 12 lbs. per acre; and Alfalfa (Ladak), 2 lbs. per acre.

Whenever alfalfa is used there is a danger of bloat. This is particularly true during the first season when the proportion of alfalfa is high.

For wet land or land subject to prolonged flooding: Reed canary grass or Redtop, 8 lbs. per acre; and Alsike clover, 2 lbs. per acre.

Oats at 3 bushels per acre will provide good annual pasture.

Canada is always in a difficult position when Britain and the United States fall to quarrelling. The natural Canadian role, as we sometimes say self-deprecatingly, is to be "an international boy scout". It is not an easy role, ever.

Strange testimony, given in Washington recently by a colonel of the US Corp of Engineers, raises the question as to who is running that country. Witness was Col. Charles Tench, in charge of US Army's shipping centre at Clairmont Terminal was a Senate subcommittee studying waterfront unions.

Taking over Clairmont Terminal, from which materials were shipped for US air bases overseas, Col. Tench found the pier infested with minor and major criminals. But moves to get rid of them resulted in strikes. In consequence, it was decided to tolerate waste and gangsterism, rather than crack down on them.

Col. Tench explained: "Our overseas jobs were critical for national defense. Clairmont Terminal was a critical link in our overseas supply chain. If Clairmont shut down 20,000 men would be idle overseas. If Clairmont failed, the overseas construction program failed."

In the end, US Army abandoned Clairmont, owing to excessive handling costs — $30 a ton.

It's a Girl

By Hannah Smith

IT WAS downright silly, after fourteen years, for Laura to break down and cry. That's what her husband Joe pointed out to her as he stood at the window with her looking out at the cause of her tears — their fourteen-year-old daughter, Rosalie. Not that anyone ever called her that. Ever since Rosalie was three and kicked the minister behind his pink clerical ear, she had been known to all and sundry as Butch.

"Butch," Laura took one more hopeless look at the jeans-clad figure hanging upside down from the tree branch and groaned. "When I think how much I dreamed of having a girl!"

After three boys, it had seemed like a miracle that morning in the hospital when the nurse brought her the joyous news—"It's a girl! And such a pretty little girl."

Lying there in bed, Laura had dreamed happily. Of pink pinafores, of dancing school and piano lessons, of fairy costumes for school plays.

When Butch was four, Laura had given the last of the ragged, grass-stained pinafores to the Good Will and bought six pairs of blue jeans with reinforced knees.

When Butch was eight, after the first fight at the tap dance recital, Laura took her out of dancing school and let her take the swimming lessons she begged for.

And at eleven, in the sixth grade play, while the other little girls flattered daintily in gilt-plashed white crepe paper, Butch had been the Hairy Ogre in a black wig, a foot-long beard and a mouthful of horrible snaggle teeth.

"I kept hoping and hoping," Laura said almost to herself, "that she'd grow out of it."

"I don't see why you're so upset all of a sudden," Joe said. "She's always been this way. What set you off right now?"

"Don't laugh, but I guess it was seeing that boy—the one who moved in next door yesterday. He's an awfully good looking kid. In a couple of years—well, she could go to dances and—"

"Oh, well," Joe said, comfortingly if not convincingly. "Two years is a long time. She can change, I guess."

"Not Butch. When the other girls are dancing, she'll probably be under a car fixing a plugged gas line or—"

"This new boy?" Joe asked, as a tall, black-haired boy in grey flannels and a yellow sweater strolled toward the noisy group around the tree. Laura groaned and nodded. Just as the newcomer approached, Butch swung her legs above her head and did a neat double flip over the tree branch. Laura's groan stretched to a wail.

"Look at her! Just look! Blonde hair a witch mop. Plaid shirt tail flying. Dirty jeans. And barefoot!"

"Watch out below!" yelled Butch, letting go of the branch.

Laura shut her eyes. She turned her back to the window. "Butch," she whispered in tones of undiluted tragedy.

Joe was still watching. "Guess that flop shook her up a little," he said. "She's coming in."

The door opened. Ollie Williams was ahead. He was looking back over his shoulder, round-eyed.

Over Butch's head, Laura saw that the other boys were staring at the pair in the doorway with the same round-eyed bewilderment. Laura stared, too.

The girl was leaning hard on the yellow shoulder. Her blue eyes looked wide, sweet, limpid. She seemed frail, small, even ethereal.

"Does it hurt much?" Ollie was asking, in a strange new voice.

"How many times do I have to tell you, Ollie Williams," said Laura's daughter, as the tall, dark-haired boy led her gently toward a chair, "that my name is Rosalie?"

A new lightweight device, worn by golfer controls his swing; helps him correct habitual faults and get the right feel of the game. Should be popular in this area!

The whole world wants peace. We pray for it, sacrifice for it, fight for it; but apparently we can stand only so much of it; and then we start fighting all over again.

This automatic ally closes windows when it rains and opens them when it stops. It is accomplished by means of small electric motors, action is brought about by relays connected with small printed-circuit grids and installed "out-of-sight" on the windows exterior. When rains strikes a grid, the mechanism goes into operation. When the grid dries the reverse action takes place and the window opens.

Easy To Spend Money — It is nonsense to say that we could not find uses for the production we are now diverting to defense. Canada, and the other countries of the free world, could certainly use new schools, power plants, hospitals and highways. Every week that passes in producing arms makes such needs more urgent thinks the Financial Post.

Man's intelligence has sunk low indeed if he can keep himself prosperous by spending half his time in producing something he can't eat, use or enjoy. No sane country, least of all those with a standard of living like ours, ever relished the prospect of spending billions on armaments. Only dire necessity forced us into this costly business. Given assurance of real peace we will only be too happy to get out of it.

Accidents like the one above can happen when blowouts occur—that's why you owe it to yourself to find out about the extra protection in B. F. Goodrich LIFE-SAVER Tubeless Tires. Most blowouts are caused when the inner tube explodes through weakened or broken cords. But, because it has no inner tube, a LIFE-SAVER Tire changes a sudden, dangerous blowout to a safe s-s-slowout—allowing you ample time to stop your car safely, with perfect control.

PUNCTURE PROTECTION

A gummy rubber compound under the tread immediately seals around puncturing objects, and permanently seals the hole when the object is removed. Inconvenience and delays are eliminated.

BLOWOUT PROTECTION

Instead of a tube, the LIFE-SAVER has a patented inner lining that's part of the tire. In event of damage there's no sudden blowout, only a small break in the liner, a s-s-slowout that lets you stop safely.

SKID PROTECTION

The LIFE-SAVER tread is cross-cut into thousands of tiny grip-blocks. At 30 miles per hour on wet roads, it stops you a car length quicker than regular tires... and gives you longer mileage too.

FAMILY PHOTOGRAPH

By Bessie Heck

I SUPPOSE the reason Mom let the six of us eat early that evening was so we'd feel good inside and give the photographer less trouble. She didn't eat with us, said she'd wait and eat with Dad afterwards.

We kids had come to accept this getting scrubbed and polished as sort of a Thursday evening ritual. For every Thursday evening, ever since Mom hit the telephone jack-pot and won the coupon for a free family group photograph, she'd seen to it that we got dressed up for that purpose. Thursdays were the only evenings the studio was open. She made sure the bathroom was clear early so Dad wouldn't have any excuse for not getting ready as soon as he got in—if indeed he'd ever get in time.

Mom looked swell in her black suit and white blouse with the lace collar. She smiled at us and tried to keep us in a good humor, and she looked at the mantel clock real often. Alice, the youngest, ran her fingers through her blond curls and pulled her blue ribbon out.

"Oh, Alice," Mom begged. "Please stay pretty." She went over and recombed Alice's hair.

"How much longer do we have to do this?" Alice demanded, pouting.

"This is the last time, darling," Mom said. "We just have to get that picture this time. The coupon expires today."

"Wouldn't you know Daddy would have to go out of town today?" Joyce griped.

"Now, Joyce," Mom said pleasantly, "your father has to make a living for us, you know. He'll make it." Mom continued. "He left town two hours early this morning just to make sure he'd get back in time."

"You know the lady at the studio said if we didn't get there by six-fifteen we didn't need to come," David said.

"Yes, I know," Mom agreed, looking at the clock. Five-thirty came, five-forty, five-fifty, but not Dad. Every five minutes by that clock seemed like an hour to me. We lived so far out that we'd need nearly fifteen minutes to drive down town.

Mom got so fidgety that she twisted her lace handkerchief. I couldn't ever remember seeing her do a thing like that.

I picked up the desk calendar and began idly counting. For thirteen Thursday evenings straight we'd had to bathe and dress and sit here and twiddle our thumbs. My tongue felt sort of funny and I guess I stuck it out to get some air because Alice yelled, "Mother, make George stop making faces!" Mom had to quiet us down after that. Then she recombed my cowlick and set my Boy Scout pin at a Mom looked at the clock again. "Oh dear," she sighed, clenching her fists. "He promised me faithfully he'd be here in plenty of time. Something must have happened."

At five-fifty-five she put her hat on the piano and told Alice she could change to her blue jeans and go ride her bike. I never saw a seven year old girl get around quite as fast as Alice did. She was gone like greased lightning. I reckon the rest of us were like Mom; too disappointed to stir.

At exactly five-fifty-nine—I happened to be looking at the clock—Dad dashed in.

"Hurry!" he shouted. "We've barely got time to make it."

We all jumped and simply could not believe our eyes. Dad had washed up at the plant, gone by the department store and dressed himself up in new clothes from head to foot.

"You can depend on me to do a thing right if I do it at all, Jane," he said to Mom. "How do I look?" He clicked his heels and spun around. "I decided I'd do you up proud with our first family group picture." He paused and seemed to really see Mom for the first time. She hadn't said a word.

"What's the matter?" he asked. "Why don't we get going?"

I could have told him why: Alice was missing!

Slowpokes Dangerous

It is perfectly true that excessive speed is the reason for most highway accidents. But the other kind has some responsibility too.

In New York State they are going to do something about the slowpokes who dawdle along at 15 or 20 miles per hour on a busy week-end. And the longer the line of honking motorists grows behind them the more slowly they dawdle.

After July 1 no motorist in New York State "may drive at such a slow speed as to impede or block the normal and reasonable movement of traffic". Something like that may be necessary in Canada, too, thinks the Financial Post.

Harry Pryce is one musician who doesn't care a fig for the current hit parade. As the smiling conductor of the Leicester Square to Broadway orchestra, heard Tuesday nights on CBC's Trans-Canada network, he is mainly interested in the songs of twenty-five or fifty years ago. Much of the old concert hall music used on the program has been contributed by faithful listeners. Harry Pryce was in at the start of Leicester Square when it began on the network nearly fourteen years ago.

Quick Assimilation

Here's a record success story reported by Napier Moore in The Financial Post. "HERR ERWIN MATTUTAT, coming here from Germany, reached the Union Station, Toronto, at 7 a.m. on Tuesday, May 21, this year, with $5 (Can.) in his possession at that time. At 10 a.m. he got a room in a rooming house on Simpson Ave. At 11 a.m. he was at the Government Employment Office applying for a job. At 1 p.m. on the same day he started work as a carpenter for the W. A. Rich Construction Co., not having had time to change his clothes. On Friday of that week he opened his first bank account in Canada with a deposit of $30.

LIGHTER cakes result when you fold egg whites into the batter, using an up and down and over motion. Do not work the egg whites in too thoroughly.

It's easy to get cakes to bake perfectly flat on top if you spread the batter around the sides of the pan first, and then let the batter fill the middle.

Never wash the flour sifter in soapy water. The soap sticks to the meshes and is difficult to remove. Use baking soda in the washing water and a utility or vegetable brush.

Never shake flour into a cup when measuring it. Sift the flour before measuring then spoon lightly into a cup and level off the top with a knife or spatula.

For a welcome change in your next custard pie, pour a layer of

THIS WEEK'S RECIPE
Vegetable Casserole
(Serves 4-6)

4 cups sliced, cooked carrots
1/2 cup top milk
4 tablespoons melted butter
1/2 cup chopped ripe olives
1/2 cup chopped green sweet pepper
1/2 cup chopped onion
Salt and pepper
1/2 cup grated American cheese
Combine carrots, milk, butter, olives, green pepper, onion, salt and pepper to taste in a baking dish. Sprinkle cheese over top. Bake in a hot (400°) oven for 10 to 15 minutes or until vegetables are heated through and cheese is melted.

maple syrup into the bottom of the pan over the unbaked pie crust before adding custard, then bake as usual.

Glazed sweet rolls are attractive. Add a little sugar to the egg white for glazing if you want a sweet and shiny topping.

To separate eggs, have them as cold as possible. This chills both the yolk and white and makes them easy to separate.

If you have egg yolks to save, cover them with cold water and they will keep perfectly for several days.

To cut very fresh cake or bread in thin slices, place the knife which you're going to use in very hot water for several minutes, then dry and use at once.

Raisins, dates and other dried fruits will not stick to the food chopper so readily if you dip the chopper in hot water before using.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Christensen, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Coppieters and Mr. and Mrs. (Inez) Webster of Mountain View and families motored to Cardston on Sunday where a Family Reunion was enjoyed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rinhold Thur.

Who said the building boom was over? Building permits this year to May 1st in nine centres across the country are up almost 50% over the same period of last year, a Financial Post survey of building commissioners shows.

Permits during the four months total $144 millions, compared with only $97 millions for the first four months of 1952.

Open winter in many parts of the country has enabled much work to get ahead earlier than it would have ordinarily.

No End In View

Ottawa doesn't expect any year-end recession, reports The Financial Post. This isn't just pre-election froth. It's a serious over-all look at how things are likely to be in Canada after half-past 1953.

Likely, thinks the experts, value of the country's total production will be some 4% over last year, despite lower prices.

There may be some further declines in farm income and in exports. Both of these — while serious enough to those directly interested — are not expected to jolt the whole economy.

There are weak spots. Serious as they may be individually, they are but cloudy patches against the general backdrop of prosperity. We're still expanding in this country. We're still spending a lot of money on defense. We're still investing more than ever before. In short, we're doing mighty well.

My four-year-old and I were walking home early one evening when I called her attention to the moon, which looked unusually low, large and bright. "Isn't the moon beautiful?" I said. She gazed at it intently for a moment and then said, "Mumma, get me the moon." I said that I couldn't reach it. Why not? she demanded. "It's too high," I replied. After a few moments consideration she exclaimed brightly, "Well, stand on a chair."
